TAKES HER PEN
IN HAND TODAY

And Takes Her Off a College Director; Asks
He Resign

Austin, Texas, Nov. 30.—(AP)—Resignation of A. G. Carter as a member of the board of directors of the West Texas Technological College was requested in a letter today by Gov. Ferguson.

The letter says the task is unpleasant to the governor and states she is informed that in December last year Carter "fitted up a building owned or controlled by you (perhaps a garage building) in the old-fashioned barroom way, providing a bar with the foot rail and the sawdust on the floor, and behind the bar you had a man dressed in the old-fashioned bartender white apron style for the Oil Men's Association in Fort Worth."

Canes Held Beverage?
"I am informed that you invited some two or three hundred guests, and to those who came you dispensed drinks that were, to say the least, stimulating and that you caused to be given away souvenir canes in which there is a hidden vial some thirty inches in length that contained approximately one pint of beverage," the letter reads. "I have one of the canes in my possession which I am reliably informed came from your place. I am also advised that at said reception given by you many became stimulated and others were under the influence of an invigorating decoction and that you in company with your guests participated in the consumption of the beverage."

Amon G. Carter is president of the Fort Worth Star Telegram. At the A. & M. College, Texas University football game Thanksgiving Day, he is reported to have admitted yelling "Hurrah for Texas Aggies and Dan Moody." Moody is the attorney general of Texas.

Governor Ferguson's letter continues:

"You, of course, remember your being at College Station on Thanksgiving day of last week on the occasion of the annual football contest between the A. & M. College and the University. If you do not remember, I can inform you that it was an imposing meeting of some 25,000 people from all parts of the state and there were thousands of young boys and girls, students and friends of both of those two great institutions, the pride of our state."

Hinis Carter Was Drunk

"I see from the papers that you admit at many times you cheered for Dan Moody and the A. & M. team. I can verify that you are correct in this statement, as you were right behind the seat that I was occupying and on two occasions when you gave vent to your vociferous exclamations, you were only a few feet from me. I believe your statement when you say in the papers that you were not aware of my presence and that you meant no personal discourtesy to me. Your friends who know you best assure me and I believe them, that when you are in a normal condition you are a courteous gentleman to the manner born, and I attribute your seeming affront to your unusual condition and the influence under which you were laboring at the time. In your state, it was but natural for you to have been unable to distinguish between a colonel on my staff dressed in khaki yellow, and a town policeman dressed in blue, who under orders from the local authorities ejected you from the grounds in the interest of public peace. No member of my staff laid hands on you as suggested by you in the public press. Personally, I gladly forget any apparent discourtesy to me, as from my own observation I know you were not responsible at the time. But your actions involve a great principle and a matter of sound public policy which I cannot overlook."

Deserted Wife Will Not Prosecute Man

Chicago, Nov. 30.—(P)—Daniel McCaine, real estate dealer of Lombard, a suburb, who took the wife and the name of Eugene Wright after deserting his own wife and two children, will not be prosecuted, but instead will be given a divorce.

Mrs. Loretta McCaine who discovered him with the other woman and the two children that were born to them, has notified DuPage County authorities that she does not desire to push an indictment against her husband, preferring to obtain a legal separation so he can marry Mrs. Wright so their children can have a name.

"All I ask is that he shall support the children that were born to us," she said.

McCaine, who has grown wealthy through his real estate deals, left his wife in Galena, Illinois, more than six years ago, going to New York where he boarded at the Wright home. Wright deserted his wife and McCaine took up his responsibilities and his name. A woman who had known McCaine in Galena saw him one day in Lombard and notified Mrs. McCaine.

Irate Hubby Adds "Punch"
to Movie Show

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 30.—(AP)—An unbridled dramatic climax of state and another man's wife broke in to a picture program with startling realism at a theater here last night. The thrilling scenes of the screen were shunted into the background when a husband jumped from his seat and landed four resounding punches on the jaw of his wife's escort. As the woman shrieked and men arose from their seats, the irate husband calmly called for order.

The recipient of the four punches was George M. Caskey, professor of dancing. The woman with him was Mrs. Otto M. Mommson and the man who staged the drama was Otto M. Mommson, electrical engineer.

"Ladies and gentlemen," the husband said, "quiet, please. This is not an act of rowdiness. I have just found this man with my wife and struck him."

A lady who was with Mommson, said to his sister, then pulled at his sleeve.

"Tell them the man's name—tell 'em loud," she said.

"The man's name," Mommson then announced, "is George M. Caskey."

Applause followed each announcement.

C. L. Goode, manager of the theater, rushed down the aisle from his office and Mommson left the theater.

At Mrs. Mommson's residence it was learned from her that she and her husband are living apart pending a divorce action in the circuit court at Racine.

DEFENSE CLOSES
SUDDENLY IN KIP
RHINELANDER CASE

Wife, Possessor of Colored Blood, is Not Called to Stand

White Plains, N. Y., Nov. 30.—(AP)—The defense in the Rhinelander annulment suit rested its case five minutes after court convened this morning without calling to the stand Alice Beatrice Jones, defendant in the proceedings.

The case may reach the jury by tonight. It has been in progress three weeks.

Mrs. George Jones, mother of Alice, was recalled briefly to the stand this morning to testify whether Alice's body was the same color at her birth as it is now. She asserted that it was. Lee Parsons Davis, counsel for the defense, turned to Justice Morschauer after Mrs. Jones had left the stand and said:

"Acting on my own responsibility and on my experience as an attorney the defense now rests."

His announcement caused surprise, as it had been believed that other witnesses were to be called.

Rhinelanders Recalled

Young Rhinelander was recalled to the stand by his attorneys. He made a sweeping denial of the testimony of Ross Chidester, former chauffeur of the Rhinelander family. Chidester had said that he told young Rhinelander of Alice's negro blood long before the latter married her but that Rhinelander had retorted "I don't give a damn."

Following his denial of Chidester's testimony, Rhinelander was cross-examined by Davis in an effort to show that Rhinelander and the former chauffeur had been on intimate terms. Rhinelander testified that Chidester had driven him and Alice to a hotel before their marriage, but he had given no thought to the chauffeur's knowledge of his relations with the girl. Six weeks later he said, he learned that Chidester had related the incident to Rhinelander's father.

Shortly after Rhinelander left the stand the court granted a recess, requested by plaintiff attorneys because of the suddenness with which Davis had rested his case. Counsel for Rhinelander indicated that more rebuttal witnesses may be called by the plaintiff's attorneys.

Churches to Talk of Stand on War During National Conference

Washington, Nov. 30.—(AP)—The question to be answered by American churches at the National Study Conference on Churches and World Peace, convening here tomorrow, says Dr. S. L. Gulick, conference secretary, is whether "they are or are not essentially pacifist."

In a statement today, Dr. Gulick set forth these questions as confronting the thirty communions to be represented in the conference:

"What do the churches of America as a whole think about war? And about peace? Are they or are they not essentially pacifist? Were they to come would they do as they did in 1917 and 1918? Do they have any distinctive message about war and any distinctive program for establishment of permanent peace?"

Dr. Gulick added the opinion that if the churches "fail to say or do anything significant" as to these questions at the conference, which he believes will "mark an epoch" in their history, their "lack of vision and their impotence will doom them to a negligible and diminishing place in the on-going life of the world."

WARRANTS ARE OUT AS RESULT
AUTO ACCIDENT

George Stitzel and an Aurora Man Figure
in Legal Tangle

An accident on the Lincoln Highway about two miles west of Dixon last evening about 5:30, led to the issuance of two warrants by Justice Grover W. Gehart when the parties to the accident arrived in Dixon. George Stitzel of this city secured the first warrant, in which he charged Robert Mooney, aged 20, of Aurora with reckless driving. Mooney then secured a warrant for Stitzel's arrest on a charge of assault. The cases have been continued, both parties furnishing bonds.

Mooney claims that he was beaten over the head and body with a shot gun in the hands of Stitzel. He told Sheriff Elliott C. Risley that he was coming to Dixon with his brother and two young ladies from Rock Falls and was following a car traveling east on the Lincoln Highway. A short distance west of the top of Lord's Hill the car which he was following slowed down and turned into a private driveway, the Aurora man declared. He then started ahead and crashed into the rear of the Stitzel car which was parked at the side of the road, turning it completely around and breaking off a rear wheel. Mrs. Stitzel was said to have been seated in the car at the time of the crash.

According to Mooney's allegation, Mr. Stitzel, who was getting a drink at a pump a short distance from the road, ran out to the scene of the crash and struck the Aurora driver with a shot gun, once on the left side of the head and a second time over the left arm. After the warrant charging Mooney with reckless driving had been issued, the Aurora man retained an attorney and had another warrant, charging assault, issued against the Dixon man.

CONTINUE DRIVE FOR BENEFIT OF
CO. FAIR ASSN.

Stockholders in Every Township Aim of Promoters

At a meeting of the board of directors of the Lee County Fair Association, held in Ames, Nov. 28, it was determined to push a county-wide campaign for membership in the association, and with this goal in view, members of the board will make a canvass of the various townships of the district, starting tomorrow.

The Lee County Fair has been conducted in such a successful manner that the county has an institution of which it should be very proud and the association deserves the support of every businessman and every farmer in the county. The stockholders at present are comparatively few, and it is hoped that enough interest in the project can be engendered to pile up a big list of stockholders.

Many of the townships in Lee County have a very slim representation on the list of stockholders. One of the primary objectives in this drive is to secure sufficient stockholders in each township so that every township may have a representative on the board of directors.

An example of what may be done where proper interest in the fair is aroused is Wyoming township. The town of Pawpaw and the township now have forty shareholders. If every township would come up to this mark the directors of the fair would feel that they were getting support that measured up to the importance of the undertaking.

When you are called upon to buy a share of stock in the fair association, remember that you are investing in an institution which has your own welfare and the best interests of the entire county at heart.

Be glad!
We are not here to sigh;

Go forth to battle praying,
Go forth to conquer smiling.

FOUR CHAMPIONS RETAINED TITLES IN HECTIC SEASON

Dartmouth, Army, Alabama and Misouri Able to Repeat

New York, Nov. 30—(AP)—Four champion football teams of 1924 managed to retain their status in the nation-wide gridiron warfare just ended—Dartmouth, Alabama, Army and Misouri.

Two amazing happenings brought about this situation, the downing of the six-year-old, California, on the Pacific coast, and the recovery of a Princeton team to conquer a Yale squad, regarded before the season started as one of the nation's most powerful.

The University of Washington descended on the Golden Bears of California and came forth with victory; and Stanford, heartened by the success of the northern invasion, accomplished what it had not done previously in 20 long years by also downing the long-time champions and taking second place in the conference standing.

Yale Failure Stunning.
Yale's failure stunned the eastern seaboard. The team had power; that was demonstrated on several occasions, but it was a last half eleven. Pennsylvania conquered Yale 16-13, but even in that contest the men of Yale looked like the champions of 1924 except for their tendency to fumble at critical stages. Then came a victory over the confident Army, a fine only to be followed by a fall before Princeton.

Championships changed hands in the two instances mentioned, but undoubtedly the season's greatest upset came on a field ankle deep in mud when Northwestern conquered what Fielding Yost calls his greatest team at Michigan 2-0. Despite the defeat, Michigan must be awarded the Western Conference title which last year went to Chicago, for it defeated all others and produced the greatest defensive record in the country.

Dartmouth Undefeated.
Dartmouth, undefeated and untied, is without opposition for eastern honors. Alabama repeated in the Southern Conference. Missouri did, likewise in the Missouri Valley. The Colorado Aggies replaced Colorado University in the Rocky Mountain. Texas A. & M. supplanted Baylor in the Southwest. Amherst took Williams' place as best in the "Little Three." Washington and the Oregon Aggies tied in the Pacific northwest, where Idaho and Gonzaga had ruled. Occidental replaced Pomona in Southern California and the Army repeated in the annual service conflict. It is estimated that 12,000,000 persons have seen the nation's college football teams in action this season, capacity crowds having been recorded at every traditional struggle.

Leaders' Records.
Following is a table showing points scored by and against the country's leading elevens:

Team	Points	Opponents
Washington	459	39
Dartmouth	340	29
Tulane	246	23
Alabama	277	7
Michigan	227	35

Every section had its backfield star. Dornbush and Tryon in the east; Orange and Friedman in the mid-west; Morrison on the Pacific coast and Flournoy in the south. Flournoy, playing for Tulane, led the nation in scoring with 123 points. Captain Tryon of Colgate was second with 111. Both men indulged in kicking points after touchdowns which swelled their totals.

Only two college players died of injuries suffered during the season.

SNOW PREVENTED SPRING VALLEY-DIXON CONTEST

Fans Content to Stay in Out of Unfavorable Weather

Football fans who long have anticipated the Spring Valley Wild Cat-Dixon Legion game, were content to stay at home yesterday afternoon rather than brave the snow fall. The game was cancelled by agreement between Managers "Goats" Doig and Ward Miller at 11 o'clock Sunday morning. An effort had been made to put the field in condition for the game yesterday morning and things were in readiness for the same about noon, when it resumed snowing.

This time the managers of the two teams agreed to postpone for another week at least. This change in plans may mean the playing of the third of a series of three games with the Clinton Legion on Dec. 13. The two teams are anxious to get together and clean up the tie game played in Clinton a few weeks ago. However, there is also a possibility that with the lateness of the season, both teams may disband after next Sunday and call it a season.

SPORTING NOTES
BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Five automobile speed records were broken in the 25 mile race at Culver City, Calif., won by Frank Elliott.

Red Grange fumbled in the football game at Chicago after catching a forward pass and running forty yards.

The youngest challenger and the youngest champion ever to go to the table in a title cue contest will meet tonight at Chicago when Edouard Horemans of Belgium and Young Jake Schaefer will play their first block of 500 points for the world's 182 ballline billiard championship. 500 points will be played on each of the following nights.

Representatives of a number of eastern and southern colleges are expected in Chicago this week to arrange football contests with members of the Big Ten, who are to gather here for their annual schedule meeting.

When General Pershing heard at Arica, Chile, that AARMY had beaten Navy at football, he said it was "mighty refreshing."

New York—See-sawing up and down Broadway I saw Benny Leonard and Lew Tendler, ancient rivals in the prizefight ring, sitting at the same table in a cabaret and whereas Bennet looketh in the pink, as pugilists quaintly put it, Lewis seemed somewhat heavy and flabby.

Saw Rudy Valentino doing the tango as he did it when it made him famous, and he conducted himself right blithely even though he was about to depart for Paris to be served with his wife's petition for divorce. Saw Wilda Bennett in a chinchilla coat which must have cost umpteens dollars. Saw also Charles Frey, whose wife sued Wilda for alimony for alienated affections. Saw Earl Carroll, the most pre-arranged producer in town, and an old acquaintance tells me that Carroll almost invariably tells a new acquaintance on first meeting of his lowly start as a peanut vendor.

Saw the man who for a dime lets you look through a microscope at the Lord's Prayer engraved on the head of a pin, back to the Broadway ballyhoo after a tour of the country fairs. Saw Kathryn Ray, the nude beauty of the "Varieties," and Dame Hammer both of them Jack Osterman, marvel of the ivory keys, is paying her ardent court.

Saw Arthur Brisbane, scrivener of editorials, seeming to have a most enjoyable time at a night club.

Saw Jack Buchanan, an English actor who bears the reputation of being the best dressed man in his country and this, and quite a dandy he is. Saw Harry Richmond, a night club host, and he can use more superlatives than any man I ever met. Ever other word he utters seems to be "very" or "most."

Saw Roy Chapman Andrews, the big dinosaur egg man from Manchuria. That wise crack reminds me that the latest in the list of Broadway papas is "the big golfie man from Grea Neck, Long Island."

About three months ago, Frank Ochsenfeld, boss printer, asked me why I didn't run a piece in the "New York Column" about the subway hat snatchers. The hat thieves wait on the platform at the open windows of a subway car until the doors are closed and the train starts. Then they reach through the window and grab a hat off the head of a passenger. There isn't anything the victim can do about it because the next stop of the train is about eight blocks away. The hat snatchers usually are young sheiks who seize a new hat which seems to be their particular size.

Well, I thought that was a pretty good item, but I didn't use it. Ochsenfeld telephoned me last night to remind me of the item and, furthermore, to tell me that his hat had been lifted from his head.

—JAMES W. DEAN.

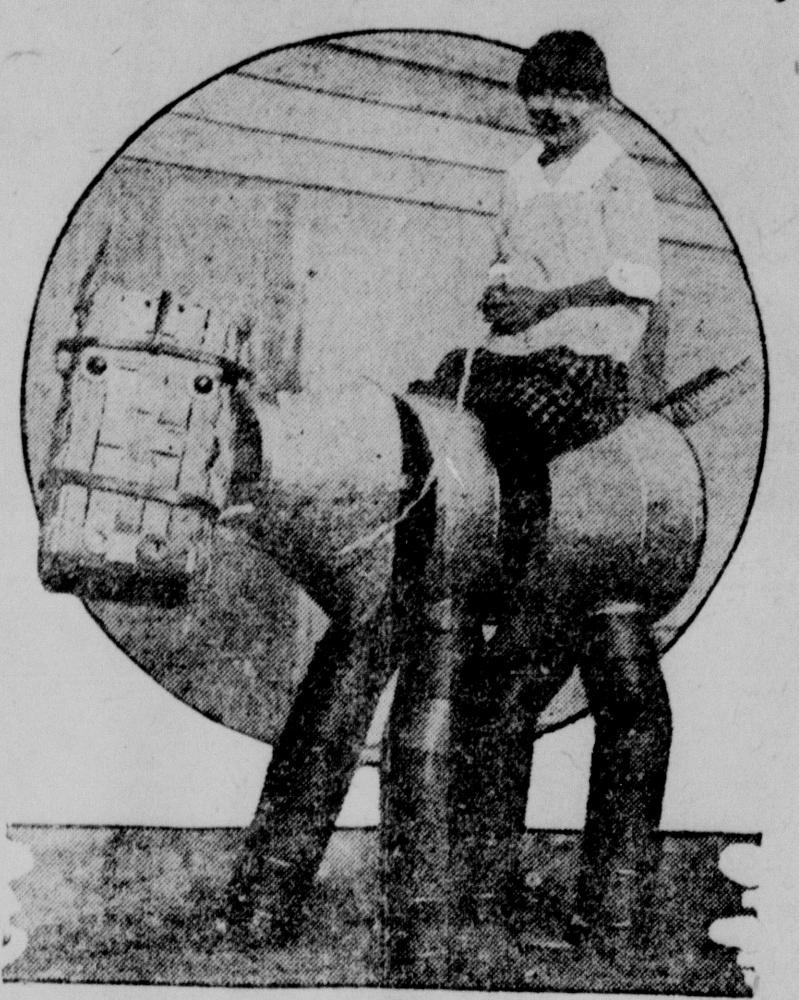

New York—Many are the forms of graft on Broadway. The latest one to come to my attention concerns the cab attendants at night clubs. Frequently out of towners drive up to a midnight cabaret in a taxi and ask the attendant what sort of a dump the place is. As likely as not the attendant will answer, "This is the cheese. Just a lot of cheapskates here. Take this card and go to the Blank club down the street. That's the liveliest spot in town and plenty to drink."

For every patron thus sent he receives a commission on the check.

Yesterday I went to the Pennsylvania Station to buy a railroad ticket. I took my place at the end of the shortest line I could find before the many windows. There were 17 ahead of me in that line. When I asked the ticket agent what the crush was about he told me that at least seven of every ten morning were Florida-bound. Rail congestion to Florida has reached such a state that it is necessary to make berth reservations two weeks and more in advance. The hegin to the southeast coast has started fully two months earlier this year than last.

Local railroad men tell me that the freight congestion is even more serious.

ous, that some freight is backed up from Jacksonville to Atlanta. However, the railroads are adding new trains and special equipment as rapidly as they are available and once the stream starts full force Florida will probably witness the greatest movement of people this country has ever witnessed.

Speaking of Florida, Steve Hannagan has just P. S. d me that at Miami Beach there is a hotel-hospital which has bath tubs equipped with adjustable platforms so that a man can lower or raise himself to the most comfortable degree of submersion. All so, as soon as a patient is registered he is psycho-analyzed and pictures appropriate to his personality are hung in the room to which he is assigned. That scheme holds great possibilities. It all depends on your imagination.

The new Madison Square Garden, which will be several miles from Madison Square, will open in a week or two with the traditional six-day bike race. That sport seems to me to be the most futile thing in the world. Men pedal a bicycle hour in and hour out for six days, traversing a distance equal to a cross-continent tour. And when they finish they are just where they started.

New York—The tap-tap-tap of the good old tap dance one more is to be heard loudly in the land. The fine old art has had a half dozen loyal exponents who refused to let it die, in spite of all the one steps, tangoes and Charleston.

Broadway is quite smoked up about a proposed tap-dance duel. Changes have been passed and newspaper clippings exchanged. In keeping with the modern code duello, Blank have never forsaken this favorite dance of the "sunny south" variations but, peculiarly enough it is a white entertainer who would "dance it out"—one Peggy O'Neill, who was born a stone's throw from the present Winter Garden, with Hazel Shelley and Ida Chadwick as proposed contenders.

Selecting the winners of a tap-dance contest was, in the old days, an art in itself. Negro judges seldom actually watched the contest. They would get beneath the platform and judge entirely by the number of taps the quality of tapping and the rhythmic value. This was done to prevent the personality of the dancer from biasing judgment. There is some talk of reviving this custom in the Broadway contest.

Speaking of dancing, I was walking up Park avenue when a friend pointed out Mrs. Elisha Dyer

Don't Let That Cold Turn Into "Flu"

That cold may turn into "Flu." Grippe or, even worse, Pneumonia, unless you take care of it at once.

Rub Musterole on the congested parts and see how quickly it brings relief. Musterole, made from pure oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other simple ingredients, is a counter-irritant which stimulates circulation and helps break up the cold.

As effective as the messy old mustard plaster; does the work without blister. Rub it on with your finger-tips. You will feel a warm tingle as it enters the pores, then a cooling sensation that brings welcome relief.

RE-DISCOVERING ILLINOIS

By LESTER B. CROSBY

Illinois Chamber of Commerce

Should you drive from Jacksonville to Mt. Sterling, Ill., as you approach the latter place the highway will cross the railroad track seven or nine or maybe twelve times. I lost count. Every town and every city, even as every countryside, is presumed to have its individuality, its personality.

These articles, "Re-Discovering Illinois," have been a study of the personalities of cities quite as much as a stock-taking of what Illinois possesses. That highway, winding back and forth across the railroad track—many times—seems to portray the personality of Mt. Sterling as it has come down through the years.

It is the abode of patience. Ultimate patience.

When one arrives in Mt. Sterling he is informed shortly that he must not drink the water in the city mains. It isn't done. It suffices that it is all right to wash with. Plans for good city water have been numerous over the years and some money has been spent. Engineers, I am told, stand ready to make a contract that will guarantee good water in plentiful supply.

Then why has Mt. Sterling not this water? Patience. A patience that seems able to endure much. Mt. Sterling knows that before it can get industries it must have good water. It has no manufactures, no plants making anything of any kind. It wants them. But it waits, in patience.

Mt. Sterling is in Brown County. There are only three smaller counties in the state. Yet thirty-four counties raise less corn than Brown. That proves the worth of its soil. It is one of Illinois' banner counties in bushels of corn per acre.

The department of agriculture on January 1, 1924, listed it the sixth county in yield per acre. Brown county was credited with 42 bushels of corn per acre; Cass and Platt counties, which tied for first place, with 44 bushels.

The average value of all crops in Brown county, per farm in 1924 was put on Jan. 1 last by the Illinois department of agriculture at $1,656. Thirty-five counties had worse records. The average of Illinois farms, according to the United States department of agriculture, was $2,336. Illinois has 102 counties.

In the estimated value of its milk cows per head Brown county stands fifth. A table I have before me puts the average value of its cows at $35. Counties like Boone, Cook, Lake, DuPage and others specializing in fine dairy cattle are given a valuation of $70 per head.

Brown county considers that one of its strongest points is hogs. My latest available records give is 31.2 hogs per farm. It is the eighteenth county in hogs per farm. Warren county is first with 62.3 hogs.

There are other statistics available, figures on horses, mules, hay, wheat, apples. All show that Brown county in these things is well, pretty much average.

The point is that Brown county's soil is better than average. Its cattle and hogs and horses and mules could be better than average. Then why is it not? Patience.

When you get to Brown county they will tell you that the citizenship of the county-side and of Mt. Sterling is "100-per-cent-pure American." Let us go to the records then, look to some other counties for comparison regarding this 100-per-cent-American business. Samples show:

County	Native White	Foreign
Brown	2,532	33
Boone	3,461	532
Du Page	3,359	1,473
Lake	11,568	2,908
Winnebago	16,272	4,888

There are a few men in Mt. Sterling and Brown county who are losing that overpowering patience that has made Brown county just an average county with no manufacturing at all. No had a meeting in Mt. Sterling and talked it over a few evenings ago.

A man, successful in business, said that Brown county should build up its dairy industry. He suggested a cheese factory. But no one in Brown county knows how to make the real cheese. Swiss and Germans are good at that. A penalty for being 100 per cent American. No wood working, no toy making. Swedes and Hollanders are skilled in this.

Another man thought that a factory making clothes would be good. But the town has no skilled textile workers. They could be trained. But how the start? Still another believed in canning plants for corn and peas. That idea seemed good. It was something founded on what the county had naturally agricultural.

Primarily the cry was—"bring us something to employ our people." They'd like more employment and also more people. And it developed that in this community, like so many other country communities, the boys and girls "go away to the cities."

In Mt. Sterling, it seemed to me, we threshed over pretty much of the average small city's problems. It seemed that we found here pretty much of the average small city's problems. Wanted, a greater variety of saleable products. Wanted, more work at better pay. Wanted, employment to keep the young people at home. Wanted, a condition that means more dollars produced per acre or per home.

In searching city after city and community after community for "stories" regarding their personalities it seems to me that the "100-per-cent American neighborhood is always less versatile. The 100-per-cent-American community has been settled by the same people for a hundred years.

Those who are impatient leave, go to the cities. The patient stay. The patient are becoming in-bred with the patient.

There are signs that some in Mt. Sterling are losing their patience. A Commercial Club has been organized. Pretty nearly everyone of importance or force in Mt. Sterling has joined it. Walter I. Manny former senator and instinctively an organizer, is president.

They told me that he had appointed forty-two working committees. There are committees to look after about everything from lawns to logarithms. Mt. Sterling is investigating the things that have put new life, new vigor, new hopes and new profits into Illinois towns such as Jacksonville and Canton which have proved what organization can do.

There is talk of finer breeding in livestock, cattle, hogs and poultry. There is talk of that longed-for water-works coming through; of paving. In the hills are workable coal and clays; very good commercial clays. Perhaps development here.

Mr. Manny and his forty-two committees are stirring. The state has built to Mt. Sterling a good concrete road. The other road that winds back and forth across the railroad will be concreted soon, probably next year. The state is impatient about these crossings. A new right-of-way will wipe the multiplicity of crossings out.

The American colonies were built up of the impatient people of Europe. In a hundred years or so their descendants, against impatient, moved west. Is it now that the impatient move again—to the cities? Do those who have become patient cease to be builders?

Brown county seems to be but partly cushing in on its natural wealth. If it gets sufficiently impatient and carries on the fight that it seems to be, starting, well, I'd like to write chapter two to this story three or five years from now.

(This is the thirty-first of a series of articles prepared by the Illinois Chamber of Commerce entitled "Re-Discovering Illinois." Their purpose is to benefit, build and develop the state as a whole. The next will be published soon.)

Good Thoughts for Good People

God, who is rich in mercy, for his great love, wherewith he loved us, even when we were dead in sins, hath quickened us together with Christ. For we are his workmanship, created in Christ Jesus unto good works, which God hath before ordained that we should walk in them.

New times demand new measures and new men; The world advances, and in time outgrows the last that in our father's day were best; and doubtless, after us, some purer scheme will be shaped out by wiser ones than we, made wiser by the steady growth of truth.

Who is the happiest of men? He who values the merits of others, and in their pleasure takes joy, even as though 't were his own.

Lift is so full of a number of things. I am sure we should all be as happy as kings.

Religious liberty, educational and economic opportunity, constitutional rights, the integrity of the law, these do not emanate from the government. Their abiding place is with the people. They come from the consecration of the father, the love of the mother, and the devotion of the children. They are the product of the honest, earnest and tireless effort that goes into the rearing of the family altar and the making of the home.

Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that heareth my word, and believeth in him that sent me, hath everlasting life.

The seeker will find the comfort and relief for which he greatly yearns in rising to new heights of spirituality. Strength is renewed through closer communion with the Almighty Father, who never permits His offspring to become weary and discouraged. God's ideas express joyous activity in unfolding divine qualities. In this happy privilege they are never weary, never discouraged, and never seek for release; for they express forever harmonious, self-existent being.

Auto Goes Over Trestle:

One Killed; Two Injured

Peoria, Nov. 28—(AP)—One Bloomington man was killed and two seriously injured at 6 o'clock this morning when their automobile plunged over the trestle of the Illinois Traction System and into Farm Creek at East Peoria. Papers on the dead man indicated he was Christian Aymann, 512 Seminary Street, Bloomington, said to be a deputy sheriff. His two injured companions were taken to a Peoria hospital where they gave the names of John J. Fisher and Earl Williams. Williams is still unconscious and is believed in a serious condition. The driver of the machine evidently lost his way, and turned up the traction company's tracks, mistaking it for the road into Peoria.

POLITICAL FIGHT IN TEXAS WAXES WARMER STEADILY

Fund Raised to Defray Expenses Special Session of House

Austin, Tex., Nov. 30—(AP)—Information that a fund of $300,000 had been pledged to defray the cost of a special legislative session, marked the Sunday interim in the Texas political situation, along with an unexpected sequel to the governor's liquor law proclamation, the filing of charges against a negro butler at the executive mansion.

Reports of the fund-raising followed declarations of Speaker Satterwhite that the expenses of the session would be taken care of. Mr. Satterwhite is leader of the movement to bring official acts of Governor Miriam Ferguson's administration before the legislature.

George Brady, the butler, who said he was the beneficiary of an extended parole and conditional pardon from Governor Ferguson, was arrested when officers said he was attempting to sell liquor to white men at a street corner. Charge of possessing liquor for sale was made against him. Another negro, in whose automobile officers found a supply of whiskey also was arrested.

More Fireworks Expected. The political row appeared ready to produce fresh fireworks today, but what the new week would bring none would attempt to say. Those who have followed the political fortunes of James E. Ferguson, husband of Governor Miriam Ferguson, are inclined to look for unexpected moves on his part.

Ferguson, who once ran for president as the leader of the American party, has always commanded a strong following in Texas, even while his aggressive attacks on his enemies and tactics of assaults on their most vulnerable spots have been known. His ability also to turn attention in the direction he wishes has stood him in good stead.

Whether his political enemies would regard the offer of the governor made Saturday to pay a reward of $500 for the arrest and conviction for violation of the liquor laws of any Texan worth as much as $5,000, as a screen to turn public attention somewhat from the agitation for a special session of the legislature to investigate state departments had not been made known by them.

Lee Satterwhite, speaker of the House, says he will call a special session of the legislature by Dec. 15, to meet probably Jan. 4. If the governor does not do so by Dec. 10, he said expenses for a special session, if he had to call one, had been provided for and that he regarded a special session necessary.

Highway road contracts, which the attorney general alleges resulted in huge profits to the bidders, precipitated the present situation.

ARTIST PLANNING DEFENSE OF HIS RUSSIAN SERVANT

Attacks of Mrs. Frank Wright Bring Reply from Husband

Spring Green, Wis., Nov. 30—(AP)—Frank Lloyd Wright, who has decided to lay aside his drawing pencils once again to follow the dictates of his conscience.

Accepting the challenge of Mrs. Miriam Noel Wright, the wife he is seeking to divorce, he will go to Chicago to give battle for the good name of his housekeeper, Mrs. Olga Milanoff, whose deportation has been demanded by Mrs. Wright in a complaint filed with immigration officials.

In his study, surrounded by his charts and drawings, he made his plans to obtain competent counsel and begin battle to protect Mrs. Milanoff from his wife's accusations. His first act was to summon his friend and counselor Judge Hill of Harbree, Wis., to help him map out a plan of campaign.

"I have laid back and done nothing as long as only myself was the target for my wife's attacks," he said, "but I feel that the time has come for action. She is aiming her shafts of bitterness at my employees and my friends.

Wright will be willing to explain to immigration officials all details of his connection with the middle-aged Russian woman. He said he will tell them that he employs two women as housekeepers, that they are servants, living in separate quarters; that he pays Mrs. Milanoff $100 a month and her companion, Lubica $75 a month, and will endeavor to show that the amount of cleaning and cooking which must be done is such that it requires the attention of two women.

He said that he will admit freely that he regards Mrs. Milanoff as a friend, but only as he regards all the employees who make up the household at his picturesque estate as friends.

"Bobbed Hair"
A DAZZLING MYSTERY STORY BY TWENTY FAMOUS AUTHORS

SYNOPSIS
Carmen Moore, instead of announcing her engagement tonight, as she was expected to do, stole away from Aunt Celimena's, being assisted in her escape by young David Lacy, whom she had never seen before. There followed hours of wild adventure, in the company of strangers who talked much of rum-running. Now Lacy, aboard a motor boat, believes he has released Connie—who was lost—but the woman he is addressing keeps her face averted.

"I'm beginning to think I'm in earnest. I'm wishing we were both out of this. I'm wishing we were out somewhere on the plains of Kansas where there's a train once a day and the biggest excitement of the year is a church supper followed by stereopticon slides of the Holy Land."

"Don't be silly," said Aunt Celimena, who was really having a better time than she had had for years. "I'm silly because I'm scared," said David Lacy. "Don't you know that's the way frightened people always act in fiction? Think of the noble heroes of the war jesting under shell fire. The more certain the death, the higher the grade of humor."

Aunt Celimena cleared her throat again. "How much more dangerous do you think our situation will have to become before the quality of a certain gentleman's levity becomes—shall we say, heightened?"

"Unkind," said Lacy, "but I laid myself open to it. It's difficult not to swat the easy balls hard, even though you put them out." He stopped. "I feel I shall be of service to you yet, though, before this little joy ride is over."

"There's ways of thinning a passenger list."

"I feel you have been already," said Aunt Celimena. Then she turned her face full upon him and by the palish light of an intermittent moon she studied his features with what might be considered ill-bred intenseness.

"My God!" said Lacy.

"Yes," she said, "I thought so. It was Auteuil. Your face comes back to me now, slowly, and completely lacking in pleasurable associations."

Lacy stared. "Your face doesn't come back to me at all, but I must say that the present sight is shorn of glamour."

"Naturally you don't remember me," snapped Aunt Celimena. "You were not looking at me but at someone else."

"I always said I had a record for taste and discrimination," murmured Mr. Lacy.

"And now," said Aunt Celimena, "where is my niece?"

"Niece?"

"Connemara."

"Well, considerably safer than we are," said Lacy.

"What do you mean?"

"Why, since you're not she, she escaped with McTish."

"Who's McTish?"

"Oh, a man of parts," said Lacy noncommittally. "I think you'd like him, and with any luck we'll meet up with him again some time this night."

"Young man," said Aunt Celimena, "was it my niece's plan to be abducted by you this evening, or your own?"

"Or possibly a collaboration," suggested Mr. Lacy.

"It will make considerable difference to me in the altering of a certain document." Her face was grim.

"My lawyer, Mr. Brewster, is on board too."

"How prepared you are," murmured Mr. Lacy. "Do you always travel with one? Now if one gets a cinder in one's eye how convenient to have one's solicitor there to sue the railroad without interfering in any way with the journey."

"You're an absurd and irrelevant young man," said Aunt Celimena.

"I'm only a scared young man," said Mr. Lacy. "That's really true. I happen to know who these gentlemen are who are acting as crew on this purloined vessel and I happen to have a hunch about their destination. There is not perfect amity in their midst, which is our only hope of salvation. But in any event, this is destined to be a spirited journey."

"What, if I may ask, is our destination?" said Aunt Celimena.

"A ship at sea. A curious ship that has been a long way. It has come from the land of slow moving rivers, junks, and yellow-skinned sailors. Forests of exquisite beauty crowd down to the edge of the black rippled waters. Poisonous lilies grow upon its surface, flaming-goes and mocking birds flash back and forth above their brief reflections. Black fishes with silver fins leap up like shadows on a wall and—"

"Beautiful," said Aunt Celimena. "But unimportant."

"You're right," said Lacy. "Well, that's where the boat started from. It's shy a lot of papers, decorated with official stamps, that other boats carry. It took it a long time to get here. No short cuts through the Panama, owing to the inquisitive nature of certain officials regarding the cargo."

Aunt Celimena's eyes opened wide. "How do you know?"

He shrugged his shoulders. "I'm just guessing."

"Listen," commanded Aunt Celimena. Two figures had come closer in the dimness.

Pooch and Swede were discoursing. "I tell you again you're a fool to run for it," said Pooch, "with all this party on board. The thing to do is to land somewhere and beat it."

"Beat it," retorted Swede sharply. "Don't you know we're as sunk now as we would be if we went through? Might as well die for a sheep's lamb, I always say."

"Look here, I won't stand for no rough play," said Pooch uneasily.

"Then look the other way if you're so sensitive. I mean to bring back what we started for. If it seems we got too many extraneous souls on board, why, there's ways of thinning out a passenger list."

Swede paused and looked at his companion with opprobrium. "Don't be so darn delicate."

"It's sense I'm talking. I tell you it's dangerous." Pooch strained his eyes out to sea. "You know what I'm afraid of."

"Just the ghost of a Scotchman," said Pooch. "I wouldn't be so particular. But I tell you there's no ghost about him. None whatever. I'm expecting to see his red head bob up on every wave. I tell you I know that pelican now. He's an old bird in the business. If I'd ever guessed he was going to be mixed up in the deal, I wouldn't have touched it, not for five times fifty thousand. An' that's flat. Say," he added thoughtfully, "you got any notion how he happened along so pat tonight? You an' Doc figured you'd covered up your tracks pretty good, but this here don't look like blind luck, to me. Looks more like there's been a leak somewhere."

The Swede swore with heartiness and some inventiveness, yet Pooch, whose ears were keen in the face of danger, was sure he caught a note of apprehension in the other's tones. He whistled between his teeth shrilly.

"So-o—" he exclaimed. "There was a leak!"

"Leak," Swede said furiously, and spat. "Hell! He was the leak himself, the red-headed blankety-blank—" He improvised freely for half a minute, and then continued more quietly. "What'd you say to his holdin' down a job for more than six months with the Shanghai Line—in the old man's private office too. He only blew tonight. I got a message tippin' me off, from the Big Noise himself. It's the whole damn show busted wide open; that's how good a leak it is."

Mr. Pooch drew a long and painful breath, and swallowed hard, twice.

Too Much Efficiency

By E. J. Rath

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JOHN W. BROOKE, widower and hardware magnate, leaving the city for two months, contracts with a firm of efficiency engineers to manage his household during that time. He starts on his trip without saying anything about this arrangement to his three children, Constance, Billy and Alice. They are startled into a realization of what their father has done when H. Hedge, efficiency engineer, takes complete control of the Brooke household. Three weeks have now elapsed since Hedge took charge. He has been making notes for a book he intends to write, showing the Brooke children as a type of the American children as a type of the idle rich. These are found by Constance, who has become his secretary through exterior motives. Upon discovering the notes, Constance makes known her true attitude toward Hedge and his scientific methods.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"I am through with efficiency," said the efficiency man.

Constance stirred.

"I am through with economy!"

She moved her head so that one eye peeped over the crook of her elbow.

"Death to scientific management!"

Constance raised her head slowly and stared at him. She met a glare that alarmed her. He was standing just opposite, across the library desk, his eyes blazing with a new light.

"You have burned my diary," he said grimly. "You have burned my notes. You have thrown into the fire all my hopes of reforming the American household. Yes—You! Now you can take the consequences—you type of the idle rich!"

Constance felt herself shrinking. She had never seen H. Hedge in such mood.

"Idle rich!" he echoed. "Idle rich! All right—I'm for 'em. I'm going to join the crowd."

He laughed boisterously. "You think I'm crazy, don't you?" he said. "I can see it in your eyes. Perhaps I am. Let it go at that; I should worry. Now I'll show you just how crazy I am."

H. Hedge made a dash at the filing case, pausing midway to execute several bewildering steps.

"Observe that I do not take the shortest route," he exclaimed. "Ha! You did observe. Now watch!"

He laid hold of the uppermost drawer, yanked it completely out of the cabinet and shook it, as a terror, worries its prey. A second dash brought him opposite the big fireplace, where the last sheets of his book on household graft were still smoldering. He dumped the contents of the drawer into the flames, seized a big brass poker and began stirring them frantically.

"There she goes!" he shouted as the big manila envelopes caught at the edges. "Everything from A to F—or G. Hanged if I remember which. Don't care either. All the economy and efficiency from A to G, or maybe H. What's the difference? See it burn! Reports, records, bills, receipts—the whole works! Nice draft in that chimney today, isn't it? Look at 'em go! You're in it, too; all the C's are included. Whee-ee!"

He danced madly on the rug, making incantations.

Constance was sitting rigid, with growing apprehension in her eyes. Perhaps he was crazy! Why, he was!

When the manila envelopes and their contents were a roaring mass of flames he wheeled quickly and made a second assault upon the filing case.

"G to L!" he exclaimed. "The other one did end at F, after all. Too bad, I thought I'd get more at one lick. Never mind. Here goes nearly half the alphabet. Well, why don't you cheer?"

He dumped the plethora contents of the second drawer into the fire, then danced again as the flames lapped hungrily.

"G to L! That includes Giovanni, and George, and Household, and Inventory, and—H. Hedge! Yes, and anything that began with a J or a K—like junk or kittens. And L—like lemons. Wow!"

Constance was fascinated with horror. But H. Hedge did not notice that. He made another attack on the cabinet.

"M to S," he announced, as he dragged forth a third drawer. "Here goes Mary, the cook! And Mattie—and Minnie—and Ruth. Horace is man in his senses could thus behave, she knew; and she could not yet believe that H. Hedge had renounced efficiency. Something had snapped in his brain; she was sure of that.

Suddenly he snatched the poker again and advanced upon her.

"See that?" he demanded, waving it. "A very useful poker—large, heavy, strong. Sit where you are; don't dare to move. I'll be back in half a minute."

He rushed from the library, and she heard him running down the hall. She sat there, powerless, even though her instinct was to fly from the house and escape the madman. A pity he was mad, she found herself thinking—a pity, because in his madness H. Hedge seemed almost sublime. Certainly he was superhuman. There was something so utterly different from the efficiency man that Constance, even in her awe, was compelled to admire.

From another part of the house she heard an echo of heavy blows. Heaven! H. Hedge was killing somebody!

Then a sound of rapid footsteps, and he was again in the library, a wild light of triumph in his eyes. He flung the poker into a corner and laughed joyously.

"It's done!" he announced. "That's a bully poker."

Constance questioned him with terrified eyes.

"Yes, it's done! The time clock is dead—all the wheels and insides spilled out on the floor."

The girl in the chair breathed again. There had been no murder in the Brooke mansion.

"Nobody'll ever punch that clock again, after the way I gave it," he cried happily. "Busted the dial at the first crack. Looks as if it had been shot up with a 42-centimeter gun. Mary is reviving Elvira—she fainted."

He paused for an instant, then rushed forward, seized Constance by the wrist, dragged her from the chair and whirled her across the room.

"Sit down," he ordered, pointing to the little office chair that stood at the typewriter desk.

She obeyed, trembling.

"Stick in a sheet of paper."

"Now take this: 'Economy & Efficiency Corporation, Ltd.,'

"New York City, New York."

"Got that?" he demanded. "Good. Now go ahead: 'GENTLEMEN:'

"I resign."

"Got that? Right! Now: 'Not send anybody in my place. If you do I'll bust him over the head. Yours truly,'

"That's all. Let's see. Here—I said 'bust,' not 'burst.' Change it. There—that's correct. Now address an envelope. Thanks. And now put in another sheet."

Constance did as bidden, in terror of the madman.

"Take this: 'Henry Wellington Hedge, DEAR SIR: 'No, wait a minute. Scratch out the 'Dear Sir.' That's it. Now: 'DEAR HENRY: 'I resign my job as secretary, to take effect as soon as I can write my name under

"Yours affectionately—"

Constance's cheeks flamed and her fingers became paralyzed after the "Yours."

"Go on! Write 'affectionately,'" he ordered menacingly. "You take orders until you sign that. You're still my secretary. Write!"

"I'm not your secretary!" she declared passionately, at last finding her voice. "You've—you've resigned yourself!"

"Not until I sign it," he cried. "Write 'affectionately!'"

With trembling fingers she wrote—"affectionately."

"Good!" exclaimed H. Hedge as he dragged her back to the big desk. "Now sign."

He dipped a pen and thrust it into her hand.

"Sign!"

She signed.

He snatched the pen from her fingers and signed the other letter, in a bold, scrawling hand.

NEXT CHAPTER: An inefficient proposal.

company as the giant industrial establishment.

THAT the American workman has the highest standard of living in the world because electrical power machinery so increases his daily production.

In actual purchasing power his wages are twice those of the British workman; two and a half times those of the Polish and Swedish workers; nearly three times those of the French and Norwegian workers; more than three times those of the Belgian and Spanish workers; and four times those of the Austrian, German and Italian workers.

THAT the electric companies which furnish this service are regulated by public officials as to standards of service and rates; and they must always keep their rates low enough to encourage the widest possible use of service if they are to grow and prosper.

THE ELECTRICAL INDUSTRY DOES NOT HOLD ITSELF UP TO BE A PHILANTHROPIST OR A SOCIAL REFORMER. YET IT HAS DONE AND IS DOING A TREMENDOUSLY IMPORTANT JOB IN PROMOTING THE WELL-BEING OF THE AMERICAN BUSINESS AND THE AMERICAN PEOPLE.

THE TANGLE

LETTER FROM MRS. MARY ALDEN PRESCOTT TO LESLIE PRESCOTT

My dear Leslie:
I am always chary about writing to you, especially if I have some information to give you because I know that whatever suggestions I make in my letter will be taken as though I were trying to interfere in something that was none of my business.

This time, however, I feel that I would not be doing my duty if I did not write you some of the things I am sure you do not know. If you did know them, I feel certain that even you would come home immediately.

First, perhaps you know that John got burned at the mill four days ago and has been confined to his room ever since. It looks now as though it would be at least a week before he will be able to be out.

I waylaid his doctor in the hall yesterday and he told me that John will be lucky if he does not have to use crutches for at least four months. I am quite sure that John, wishing to spare you the pain, told everybody but me not to write anything to you about his accident. I got this from the children's nurse, when, last night I expressed surprise that you had not returned before this to be with your husband. I am very glad he forgot to tell me not to do this, probably because he knows that you never write me and 'ie thinks of course that I would not write you if you did not first write me a letter.

There is no loss without some small pain, however, and this gives me a chance to tell you the news. He is right about my not writing you. Under any other circumstances I wouldn't, but I think you should know how much you are needed in your own house.

That Mrs. Atherton who styles herself your friend, and who, if I had my way, would be quickly put in her place as a merely professional secretary of John's, has been up here every day and she insists that I should see John without anyone else being present. Indeed, she told me yesterday morning when I intimated that I did not think it was quite the right thing for a young woman to spend hours in the room of a man who is obliged to be in bed, that she had never before come in contact with a woman who had such a nasty mind before.

I am quite sure that if I had not written you this myself, you would not believe it, but having told you, you will see the importance of coming into your own household and setting it in order. Of course, my son John does not see any of these things. He pro'stly looks on that Atherton woman merely as a piece of furniture.

USE OF TELEPHONES

Twenty-five years ago there was one telephone in this country for every 57 persons, but now there is one for every seven.

When a business man can do in 10 minutes over the telephone, the work he might have had to travel hundreds of miles to accomplish by the old ways, there is a saving of national energy.

This marvelous system binds the whole nation together like the nerves in a human frame. As the action of our hands and feet follows the impulse that travels from the brain over the nerves, so some director of energy thinks in his office, and work is directed by telephone over hundreds and thousands of miles.

When the lines are clogged by long conversations about nothing, or when people mumble their words in an indistinct way, the operation of this delicate mechanism is interfered with, much as careless handling of our nervous systems will lower its efficiency.

Does Nature Give Us Gasoline?

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) believes that much of the misunderstanding of the petroleum industry, on the part of the public, may be charged to lack of information respecting this very point.

Nature does not give us crude oil, much less does she give us gasoline. She makes us pay for every barrel of crude we get in money, in time and laborious effort.

"Of the 18,500 wells drilled in the United States between January 1 and September 30 this year, more than 6,500 failed to find oil."

The drilling of these wells called for heavy investments of capital. The producers of crude oil pay enormous sums of money annually for machines, equipment, engines, boilers, motors, pumps, pipes, tools, cement, tile, brick and scores of other materials.

The cost of producing crude is great, and growing. It has been calculated "that in the producing branch alone over a half a billion dollars a year are spent in the effort to maintain the country's oil supply."

More than one-third of this tremendous investment is lost by reason of the wells failing to reach an oil strata. The other two-thirds represent producing wells.

When the oil is above ground, it must be handled and rehandled before it can reach your tank as gasoline.

First, it must be transported long distances through pipe lines.

Second, it must be stored in quantities sufficient to insure a steady supply for the refiners.

Third, it must be refined in plants that represent a total investment of hundreds of millions of dollars.

Fourth, it must be transported in special tank cars to point of distribution.

Fifth, it must be stored in bulk stations until called for by the consuming public, and, Sixth, it must be hauled in tank wagons to service stations, garages, or to the tank of the ultimate consumer.

Each of these steps calls for large investments of money and heavy operating charges all of which the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) furnishes that you may have your gasoline when and where you want it at a reasonable price.

No, nature does not give us gasoline!
